Information on Cookies

What are cookies

A "cookie" is a text file saved on the user's computer when the user accesses a website with the purpose of providing information each time the user returns to the same site. It is a sort of reminder of the internet page visited. With the cookie, the web server sends information to the user's browser (Internet Explorer, Mozilla Firefox, Google Chrome, etc.) stored on the latter's computer, and will be re-read and updated every time the user returns to the site. This way the website can automatically adapt to the user. During navigation, the user may also receive cookies from different sites ("third party" cookies) on his terminal, set directly by the managers of said websites and used for the purposes and in the manner defined by them.

Depending on their duration, they are divided into session cookies (i.e. temporary ones and automatically deleted by the terminal at the end of the browsing session by closing the browser) and persistent cookies (i.e. those that remain stored on the terminal until they expire or are deleted by the user).

Based on the function and purpose of use, cookies can be divided into technical cookies and profiling cookies.

Technical cookies

Some cookies are used to perform computer authentication, session monitoring and memorization of specific information on users who access a web page. These cookies, so-called technical, are often useful to allow you to navigate a website and use all its features. Technical cookies are those whose use does not require the user's consent.

Analytics cookies also belong to this category . These are cookies that collect information about a user's use of a website and which allow it to improve its functioning. For example, analytics cookies show which pages are most frequently visited, allow you to check the recurring patterns of use of a website and help understand any difficulties the user encounters in using it.

Profiling cookies

Other cookies can instead be used to monitor and profile users while browsing, study their movements and web browsing or consumption habits (what they buy, what they read, etc.), also for the purpose of sending advertisements for targeted services and personalized. In this case we talk about profiling cookies. The use of these cookies requires the prior acquisition of the user's free informed consent pursuant to art. 7 of EU Regulation 2016/679 and the national legislation in force.

Third party cookies

It may also happen that a web page contains cookies from other sites and contained in various elements hosted on the page itself, such as advertising banners, images, videos, maps or specific links to web pages of other domains that reside on servers other than the one on which the requested page is located. In other words, these cookies are set directly by website operators or servers other than this website. In these cases, we are talking about so-called third-party cookies, which are usually used for profiling purposes. The use of these cookies requires the prior acquisition of the user's free informed consent.

Types of cookies used by our site

The main functions of the cookies installed by www.quellochepaceavaleria.com are technical, they are used to constantly improve the Service, for authentication, for statistical purposes, such as counting visits to the site. The use of cookies is therefore strictly aimed at facilitating the functions of the server while browsing the Service.
